

Our name: Sustainable Transition

Transition Durable sprl is a Belgian company expert in energy and water precarity and behavioral changes in the frame of sustainable development. Laurent Geissmann took its management over in 2011 and reinforced its legitimacy and expertise.

This company is convinced that a change of mentality is necessary but also that a lot of people need help to skip this step. Our engagement is to help them in this process.

Our theme: make changes easier

Our core business is to facilitate (provoke) changes in attitudes in the fields of environment, sustainable development and eco-citizenship.

We strive to provide responsibility to make each actor accountable for a better world. We want to provide solutions and initiate concrete actions that will work, without any guilt or scare.

Transition Durable has adopted three major directions to match its goals:

- We help you identify the right targets to achieve results.
- We train the trainers and participants to make them able to act.
- We develop performant pedagogical tools to help your target audience.

Our strength: a combination of science and the human factor

In his leading of Transition Durable, Laurent Geissmann has both a scientific and a highly social vision. All our actions are based on these two inseparable components.

Everybody is able to understand the issues if he is offered the opportunity to. Vulgarize the explanations sometimes is a sort of a sport in which Transition Durable excels.

An explanation of the issues allows Transition Durable to responsabilize everyone so he can knowingly choose the way that he wants to follow.

Our approach: act in a reasonable way

Each of our missions is unique. It is adapted to the nature of the public, the client's objectives and the needs of the field. All our interventions are designed to promote education and public responsibility. We don't want to realize a greenwashing procedure.

Our field: multidisciplinary

Through our customers, we tackle extremely diverse themes and publics:

- We are specialized in the development of modules for the precarious public (CPAS, landlords, Emmaüs, NGOs...)
- We work with companies and governments to promote the energy and water saving, to prepare the waste management and to establish a global management of the environment.
- We train the public by the means of conferences on the topics of energy, waste, water and green building.
- We develop special methodologies for young people to enable them to understand the issues, to develop their own projects and to invest.
- We work with an audience of teachers (scientific vulgarization about environmental issues and search of solutions through participatory projects).

Our experience: performance and simplicity

We avail ourselves of a long experience in the areas we cover. Our guarantee of quality is the stability of clients with whom we work.

We have published many educational tools, fitted a model home in energy and water performance, advised the largest companies (GDF SUEZ, Emmaüs France, the administration of the Ministry of Environment in Brussels (IBGE), the municipal administration of Uccle, lots of Brussels' associations active in sustainable development, etc.).

Our company performs each and every year about 150 days of training, expertise and consultancy, and delivered 50.000€ of pedagogical tools in the first six months of 2013.
